

History

Explore—Journal of Research for UG and PG Students

ISSN 2278 – 0297 (Print)

ISSN 2278 – 6414 (Online)

© Patna Women's College, Patna, India

<http://www.patnawomenscollege.in/journal>

Young minds in politics

Yamini • Jaya Mrinalini • Prity Bala
• Sneha

Received : December 2010
Accepted : February 2011
Corresponding Author : Sneha

Abstract : India has large productive and young population as her asset and this young generation is the driving force of any nation. The major problem that has always been faced by Indian politics is misallocation of resources and incapable leaders at the top. It is stereotypical to think that only people with grey hair can become successful politicians. The younger generation do not have any platform to show their leadership.

If we truly believe that the future of any country lies in the hands of the youth, then we need to take a step forward in their direction. Only youth can change the pace of the course of our nation's progress and make India a global giant. If we want to see a better India is time to take charge. We have to build a foundation now for a prosperous future. Unless the youth feel concerned and get involved in politics at all stages, we cannot expect a nation to grow.

The likes of young politicians like- Rahul Gandhi, Milind Deora, Sachin Pilot, Agatha Sangama add life and a fresh set of ideas to the decision making bodies. It is the young generation X (next), Y (youth), and Z (zealous), who can resuscitate India. The youth has to become a part of politics to facilitate the reconstruction of a better society and a country free from corruption, violence, black marketing, fraud etc. Thus, if we as a nation have to move ahead and build the country of our dreams, we have to use politics as a medium to ensure that government remains sensitive and accountable to the people.

Key words: Politics, Youth, Young Politicians, UPA.